The New Student and Family Programs vision.

A cohesive and impactful transition experience for George Mason University’s new students and families that promotes their continuous learning, academic success, social engagement, and ultimately, retention. Coordinates all new student and family programs, including Orientation, the First Year Experience, and Family events.

- NSFP plans and executes Orientation for all undergraduate students as well as coordinates programs and initiatives geared toward engaging new students throughout their first year.
- NSFP is the primary contact for all families of Mason students, and engages them throughout the year in many events and experiences to help support their student.
- NSFP supports new students and families virtually to help them on-board to their first semester at Mason or through events like Orientation, Preamble, and Family Weekend.
- NSFP provides assistance in navigating Mason departments, policies, and procedures to help acclimate to the university.

The NSFP Values

1. Always remain student-centered
2. Provide a sense of belonging within the Mason Family
3. Educate and inform our audiences
4. Build and maintain mutually beneficial relationships
5. Strive for excellence

Mason Families

New Student and Family Programs (NSFP) recognizes the important role families play in their student’s development and success at Mason. Serving as a centralized resource, NSFP is a liaison between the university and families, and provides an outlet for families to become active members of the Mason community through programming and outreach.

For more information about New Students and Family Programs, please visit us online at ofps.gmu.edu.